Dear Patient,

We, as physicians and nurse midwife, are deeply committed to the support and training of residents and medical students. The practice of medicine consists of a care giver / patient relationship and “hands on” patient care cannot be duplicated or replaced.

When you are admitted to any of our area hospitals, there will be nurses and other health care providers, male and female, that assist us with caring for you and your baby. Although we attempt to stay with you as much as possible, it is difficult to predict how many other patients we will have in labor, emergencies, etc.

Please discuss with us any wishes you have for your birth experience in order that it meets all of your expectations.

Sincerely,

Karen Bradley, MD
